An investment banking manager has the details of Earnings across different industries. It wants to look at the current details of performance and conclude which segments can be clustered together so that he can then assign Relationship Managers accordingly.

Problem Statement

An investment banking manager has the details of earnings across different industries.

Based on performance, which segments do I cluster together to assign relationship managers?